Overnight service on SEPTA to start June 15

The facts

Trains will replace Nite Owl buses on weekends and holidays, including July 4th and Labor Day.

- The City Hall Courtyard will be closed as it usually is for late-night access.
- Riders should use the SEPTA stairways outside of City Hall to reach the late-night Market-Frankford and Broad Street lines.
- Maps and schedules are available at www.septa.org.

By the numbers

10K

Riders currently use the NiteOwl bus service on weekends.

12:01

Summer transit schedules take effect at 12:01 a.m. on June 15.

It's now official: The subways will be open for 24 hours over the summer weekends.

SEPTA announced on Tuesday that its planned summer subway service pilot program will begin 12:01 a.m. Sunday, June 15 and conclude after the Labor Day weekend and Made in America festivities.

Under the new schedule, the Market-Frankford and Broad Street lines will remain operational from midnight to 5 a.m. on Saturdays and Sundays. Trains will run every 20 minutes between midnight and 5 a.m.

The change will also affect cashiers. At high-trafficked stops, the cashiers will take fares at the turnstiles. But at the less-traveled stops, passengers are instructed to push through the turnstiles and pay the train operator, who is located in the train's first car. The train operators will accept tokens, cash fares, passes and will sell transfers, but not hand out change. Operators will not sell tokens.

SEPTA officials has also pledged increased police presence on all of the overnight trains.

The 24-7 service is not a new concept. Throughout the 1980s, the trains ran 24-7, but were replaced with the overnight NiteOwl bus service in 1991 due to low ridership.

SEPTA General Manager Joe Casey said that Philadelphia's demographics and populations have shifted in the last 20 years. "Now with all of the restaurants, increased late-night activity and people moving back into the city, we're excited to be able to provide this service that city, business leaders and customers have been asking us for."

SEPTA officials have budgeted between $100,000 and $200,000 to start the pilot program.

At the end of the pilot program, officials said they will evaluate ridership, costs and security issues, among other factors, and decide whether the 24-7 weekend subway service should be permanent.

Attorneys: Collapse workers 'scapegoats'

Anniversary. Those charged in the building collapse were in court Tuesday.

General contractor Griffin Campbell and backhoe operator Sean Benschop, who both face murder charges for the deaths of six people inside the Salvation Army that collapsed one year ago as they were demolishing the adjacent building, failed to get conspiracy charges dropped Tuesday.

Campbell and Benschop allegedly "conspired" by allowing a dangerous demolition to take place, their lawyers said.

Benschop's lawyer Daine A. Grey Jr. said his client has been "scapegoated" for following orders. "If he hadn't followed directions, they would've got somebody else," Grey said.

"What you have is somebody who had a criminal record, who had a crazy-looking mugshot, who looked like they'd be the person who'd be the perfect scapegoat."

Griffin's lawyer William Hobson also said his client has been "overcharged."

"If that job site was so apparently dangerous, why wouldn't Plato [Marinakos], as the board-certified architect, say 'Hey, stop this'?" Hobson asked. "L&I never shut it down, OSHA never shut it down.

Quoted

"There were a number of entities more culpable, who controlled methods and means of demolition, who have not been looked at, who they're not going after or who they're using to prosecute my client." Grey

My guy, he's not just on the low end of the totem pole. He's an easy target."

Fight against cancer. CHOP to get a 'recording studio on wheels'

Taylor Swift visits CHOP patients in summer 2013. / CHOP

A $50,000 gift from seven-time Grammy award winner and Berks County native Taylor Swift will go toward creating a "high-tech music therapy cart for teens to create and produce their own music while they go through cancer treatment" at The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia.

"We are thrilled that Taylor Swift has chosen to support The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia's Cancer Center," Dr. Steven M. Altschuler, CEO of CHOP, said in a statement. "Her gift will help lift the spirits of many CHOP patients during a difficult time."

The CHOP Cancer Center's "Adolescent and Young Adult Initiative" was started in 2010 to provide teen cancer patients with psychosocial services and activities as they fight for their health.

Swift's grant will go toward expanding these services to aid patients with recording and mixing their own music, according to CHOP.

"Essentially a recording studio on wheels, this new tool will enable our Music Therapy Team to eliminate traditional barriers, and allow for limitless musical expression by our teen patients," said CHOP Cancer Center child life manager Stephanie Rogerwick in a statement.

A CHOP spokeswoman said the music therapy cart should be ready by early fall. SAM NEWHOUSE

What it does

Swift's grant will be used to create a specialized "recording studio on wheels" for teens with cancer.

- The "music cart" will be available to play and record music.

Obama defends swap to recover Sgt. Bergdahl

Criticism. He said his administration had told lawmakers earlier about a possible swap.

President Barack Obama on Tuesday defended the deal to get U.S. Army Sergeant Bowe Bergdahl out of Taliban captivity, saying questions about the circumstances of the soldier's capture did not negate the need to bring him home.

Speaking at a press conference in Poland, he also said the United States would be able to "go after" the five Taliban prisoners who were released in exchange for Bergdahl if they posed a new threat to U.S. security.

As Bergdahl emerges from five years of captivity, former comrades have accused him of walking away from his unit, prompting a manhunt that they say cost the lives of at least six fellow soldiers.

Obama rejected that as a reason for not doing the deal. "The United States has always had a pretty sacred rule, and that is we don't leave our men or women in uniform behind," he said.

General Martin Dempsey, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, said the army "will not look away from misconduct if it occurred" with regard to Bergdahl's departure from his unit. REUTERS

Senate effort to preempt EPA carbon crackdown

Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell on Tuesday introduced a bill that would try to block newly proposed government regulations that seek to curb carbon emissions from U.S. power plants.

McConnell, a Republican from a major coal-producing state which is also reliant on coal for electricity generation, faces a tight re-election battle in November's elections and has been campaigning on a promise to protect the state's ailing coal sector.

He launched the legislation on the Senate floor, saying it would block the Environmental Protection Agency's rules unless proof was provided that the regulations will not threaten electric reliability, raise electricity prices or cost jobs. REUTERS

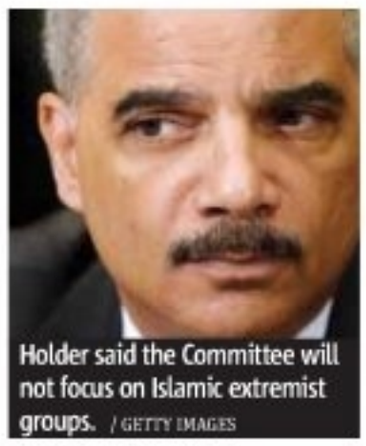
Terrorism. US revives group to fight homegrown extremists

The United States is re-establishing a law enforcement group to fight those it designates as domestic terrorists, the Department of Justice announced Tuesday.

Following hate-motivated shootings, such as the one at a Jewish Community Center in Kansas City, Missouri, in April, federal prosecutors have pressed the need to coordinate intelligence about such criminals on a national level, Justice Department officials told Reuters.



Holder said the Committee will not focus on Islamic extremist groups. / GETTY IMAGES

"We must also concern ourselves with the continued danger we face from individuals within our own borders who may be motivated by a variety of other causes from anti-government animus to racial prejudice," Attorney General Eric Holder said in announcing the group, named the Domestic Terrorism Executive Committee.

The committee's members will come from the FBI, the National Security Division of the Justice Department and the Attorney General's Advisory Committee, which includes representatives of federal prosecutors. REUTERS

Obama offers military help to wary allies

Russian sights.
Eastern European allies are worried they could be next.

President Barack Obama promised on Tuesday to beef up military support for eastern European members of the NATO alliance who fear they could be next in the firing line after the Kremlin's intervention in Ukraine.

Obama unveiled plans to spend up to $1 billion in supporting and training the armed forces of NATO states on Russia's borders.

The White House also said it would review permanent troop deployments in Europe in the light of the Ukraine crisis — though that fell short of a firm commitment to put troops on the ground that Poland and some of its neighbors had sought.

Stationing troops permanently in eastern Europe would be tricky: Many NATO members in Western Europe would balk at the cost, and a big increase in U.S. forces could prompt reciprocal steps by Moscow.

Obama was to meet Ukraine's president Petro Poroshenko in Warsaw and will attend celebrations in France with Russian President Vladimir Putin on Friday to mark the 70th anniversary of the World War II D-Day landings. REUTERS

Tiananmen Square

China raises security at eve of anniversary

China defended the bloody 1989 crackdown on pro-democracy demonstrators around Beijing's Tiananmen Square on Tuesday, the eve of the 25th anniversary, saying it had chosen the correct path for the sake of the people.

For the ruling Communist Party, the 1989 demonstrations that clogged Tiananmen Square in Beijing and spread to other cities remain taboo after the government termed the protests "counter-revolutionary."

The anniversary of the date on which troops shot their way into central Beijing in 1989 has never been publicly marked in mainland China, though every year there are commemorations in Hong Kong. REUTERS

More trouble. Aide alleges harassment in suit against Sterling

A lawsuit filed on Monday against Donald Sterling accuses the embattled Los Angeles Clippers owner of repeatedly subjecting a woman who worked for him to sexual demands and racist comments. Maiko Maya King's suit also claims Sterling ultimately fired her when she protested.

An attorney representing Sterling, Bobby Samini, rejected the assertions, according to the Los Angeles Times. "Anyone objectively reviewing Ms. King's claims will have no doubt that they are without merit," the newspaper quoted Samini as saying.

The lawsuit filed in Los Angeles Superior Court said Sterling lobbed a "steady stream of racially and sexually offensive comments" at King, with whom he was in a "romantic relationship" from 2005 to 2011.

"He supported her financially and she worked for him and his foundation," the suit said. Also alleged is that she returned to work for Sterling for a second stint until he dismissed her over her protests in early May.

King, who is seeking unspecified compensatory damages, alleged that Sterling made sexual demands and withheld wages when she refused. REUTERS

No answer yet on cause of plane crash

Investigators do not yet know what caused a deadly plane crash in Massachusetts on Saturday, though data pulled from the private jet's recorder show it crashed just 49 seconds after starting its ground roll.

The plane accelerated to about 190 miles per hour before braking and reversing thrust, according to National Transportation Safety Board Investigator Luke Schiada, who confirmed that the plane never got off the ground.

Philadelphia Inquirer co-owner Lewis Katz and six others were killed.

Schiada declined to say whether the new information indicated that the pilots may have tried to abort the flight.

The voice recorder also captured the pilots making "comments concerning aircraft control," Schiada said. METRO

OMG! The look of feral facial fuzz

It could well be a new hipster trend to sculpt and cut critters into bushy bristles. But these "beastly" designs are in fact a part of New Zealand-based shaving company's Schick's #freeyourskin ad campaign aimed to encourage men to tame their unruly facial follicles. The Auckland-based Y&R advertising agency behind the photoshopped beards tells Metro why a man's "outer animal" needs to be kept under control.

A new ad campaign for a furry face. / SCHICK

Beards can look a little wild, but how did you come up with this artsy animal style?
Being an ad agency, we're not short on creatives sporting unkept facial hair, most likely resulting from a lack of hygiene. When quizzed, they all confessed that their beards aren't actually that pleasant to live with. This led us to the insight that beards actually take on a persona of their own — a very clingy, irritating persona, much like a small pest.

Beards are in a bristling boom period right now, so why are you trying to get men to rein in their facial hair?
It's a funny thing, really. Beards are clearly very popular among the alternative hipster community. Ironically, most hipsters are now sporting matching beards and the trend has now caught on with the mainstream. It's just a matter of time before they hang up their expensive kale-infused beard waxes and pick up a Schick razor. Another reason to trim is that multiple studies have found that women actually find beards kinda gross.

It's been reported that women find beards more attractive because it creates greater symmetry and a stronger jaw line. So are the men with the feral facial hair getting much female attention?
Even Dolph Lundgren's jaw line would get lost under the beards our models are sporting. By trimming your facial hair back to a manageable length, perhaps the classic five o'clock shadow, you'll be able to groom it into a chiseled shape that would land you a part in any crappy '80s action film.

Pitt talks attack

Brad Pitt is finally breaking his silence about his red carpet run-in with Ukrainian prankster Vitalii Sediuk at the "Maleficent" premiere last week. "I was at the end of the line signing autographs, when out of the corner of my eye I saw someone stage-diving over the barrier at me," he tells People magazine in a statement. "I took a step back. This guy had latched onto my lapels. I looked down, and the nutter was trying to bury his face in my crotch, so I cracked him twice in the back of the head — not too hard, but enough to get his attention because he did let go. I think he was then just grabbing for a hand-hold because the guys were on him, and he reached up and caught my glasses." The crotch-targeting is in line with Sediuk's style of prank, as he'd been caught sticking his head under America Ferrera's dress last month on a Cannes red carpet. The disgraced TV reporter was sentenced to three years' probation, a year of counseling and a temporary restraining order keeping him from Pitt and his partner, Angelina Jolie.

Jonah Hill has a homophobic moment

Jonah Hill got fed up with a photographer who was following him this weekend in LA. The paparazzi reportedly mocked him, and that's when the actor exclaimed, "Suck my d—, you f—!"

That f-word we're censoring is not the one that's four letters long, but rather the homophobic one.

Hill, who's been known as a strong supporter of the LGBT community, went on "The Howard Stern Show" on Tuesday to offer his sincere apology for using the slur. "In that moment, I said a disgusting word that does not at all reflect how I feel about any group of people. I grew up with gay family members. I'm leaving here to go spend the day with one of my closest co-workers and best friend, who is gay, who's getting married. I'm going to stand [with him] at his wedding," Hill told Stern.

Rihanna shows her stuff, but it's nothing we haven't seen before

It's hardly news anymore when we see Rihanna's boobs, but it's still fascinating as heck, right? Rihanna attended the CFDA Fashion Awards in New York City Monday night in a dress that left nothing to the imagination. The see-through dress wasn't just partially see-through — it was full-frontal nudity! We're choosing to show side nudity though (with reflections from flash bulbs and her stole tastefully covering certain parts) because we're a family-oriented newspaper, d— it! Oops, we probably shouldn't say that last word then. Rihanna was, by the way, accepting the Fashion Icon Award.

GARCES CHANGES THE RULES WITH VOLVER

On the heels of Thursday's charity BBQ at Luna Farm in Ottsville for his Garces Foundation with wife, Beatriz, Jose Garces is changing the rules a bit at his tony, ticketed Volver.

Not long ago, it was rumored Volver would lift sanctions to raise reservation levels on off-hours and tempt diners perhaps confused by ticket policies. Starting this week, Volver starts experimenting with $95 tasting menus for Wednesday and Thursday seatings between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. during the usually slow summer months, to start. It's a smaller, still-hearty take on Garces' mega-performance dinner.

Tickets go on sale Friday for Wynnewood-born glam rocker Joan Jett's charity gig with The Who's Roger Daltrey for Teen Cancer America at Kimmel Center July 28.

Here's some news from Philadelphia Mural Arts' 10th annual fundraising Wall Ball at Union Transfer last weekend. Graphic artist Shepard Fairey picked up a Tony Goldman Visionary Award (an award Philly's M. Night Shyamalan would've shared, except he couldn't attend due to a rumored meeting in Hollywood), spun records with Cosmo Baker, hung with Andrew Jeffrey Wright and other pals from the Space 1026 collective and told anyone within earshot he was considering making another mural (like that which he wheat-pasted onto Fishtown's Rocket Cat Café) in Philly this summer.

Metro does not endorse the opinions of the author.

Seen on the scene

- The Roots Picnic at the refurbished Festival Pier was a stone-soul groove with its backstage area a family-and-friends blast: DJ RJD2, Doug E. Fresh (who hit the stage with Rahzel for "La Di Da Di") and notorious rap impresario Suge Knight (spotted by many). While the Picnic started, Philly-expat Diplo, who played Friday, hit the hoops outside the Palumbo Recreation Center.

- Art Sanctuary closed its 30th Celebration of Black Writing with a Lifetime Achievement prize for author Earnest Gaines and the Gamble & Huff Award for Excellence in Songwriting, presented by its namesakes to Philly's platinum-plated producing team Carvin Haggins & Ivan Barias with Ledisi in the house. Interview. The "Palo Alto" lead steals scenes in his new movie, "The Fault In Our Stars."

When you're watching a romance between two cancer-struck teens unfold, you need some comic relief. In "The Fault In Our Stars" (out June 6), that comic relief is Nat Wolff.

In the movie — based on the best-selling book by John Green — Wolff plays Isaac, a teen going blind from eye cancer. But what devastates him more than his disease is that his hot girlfriend leaves him. OK, so a teen with eye cancer who gets dumped isn't exactly cheery, but Wolff's irreverence and funny one-liners make him stand out in this movie.

But it is depressing, and Wolff says he couldn't help getting upset during film-

ing. “I thought I’d have the least heavy job, but then I realized it was way deeper and [more] upsetting than I thought it would be,” he tells us. “[It was challenging] trying to find how Isaac was using humor to deflect his pain, but then I realized that’s what the whole movie is about: dealing with pain in realistic ways.”

Before he started filming, Wolff was adamant about meeting real teens with cancer to get a better handle on his character. Amazingly, he met a guy who was going through the same exact predicament his character was going through: going blind and getting dumped. “I learned kids with cancer are just like anyone else. They’re still getting dumped, they can still be a—holes. Or they can be great, but they aren’t perfect. And they still want to have sex,” he says.

Wolff also wore blinding contacts while filming and lived two days completely blind. “I put Tiger’s Balm on my toothbrush, which almost killed me,” he says. “But you realize you have to smell your toothbrush when you’re blind.”

During filming, Wolff became close with everyone on set, including fellow young actors Shailene Woodley and Ansel Elgort, as well as author John Green. Wolff, who is in a rock band with his younger brother Alex, especially bonded over music with Elgort, who is a DJ. The small cast is especially protective of the love story they’re telling, but Wolff hopes it affects moviegoers as much as it has affected him. “It’s powerful. It shows how powerful love is. And even if you live a short life, you can live a full life.”

AMAZING DIABETES STUDY

Encouraging Study on TYPE II DIABETES Shows the disease CAN BE REVERSED in as little as 1 WEEK!

A free guide has just been made available to Type II Diabetics detailing an approach that appears to be more powerful than any drug know to modern science. The free diabetic guide explains in plain English how many diabetics have been able to reduce and eliminate their drugs and insulin injections, lose weight without exercise, reduce and eliminate the risk for diabetic complications, restore pancreatic function, and even become non-diabetic. The free guide also reveals rarely used diagnostic testing that is helping doctors understand potential causes of diabetes beyond weight gain, genetics and lack of exercise.

The weekly Yelp. Best doughnuts in Philly

Doughnuts or donuts? It doesn't matter how you spell it — these sweet breakfast treats are popping up all over Philadelphia. Before you find yourself glazed and confused searching for the right one, check out this list of some of the best shops in town.

Delicious pastries with a quirky South Philly ambiance. I always get the powdered ricotta doughnut. It's like a cannoli/doughnut love child! CYNTHIA W.

Federal Donuts

Trust me, it's tempting to not want to try every donut and muffin in there – with names like "chocolate chip cheesecake muffin" and "the monster." Those delicious treats stare back at you with their tantalizing glazy goodness. JELYN F.

Undrgrnd Donuts

3300 Arch Street
Undrgrnd Donuts has it figured out. You order and the donut/coffee/whatever is ready fast. The menu is fun and changes a little each and every time. NICOLE H.

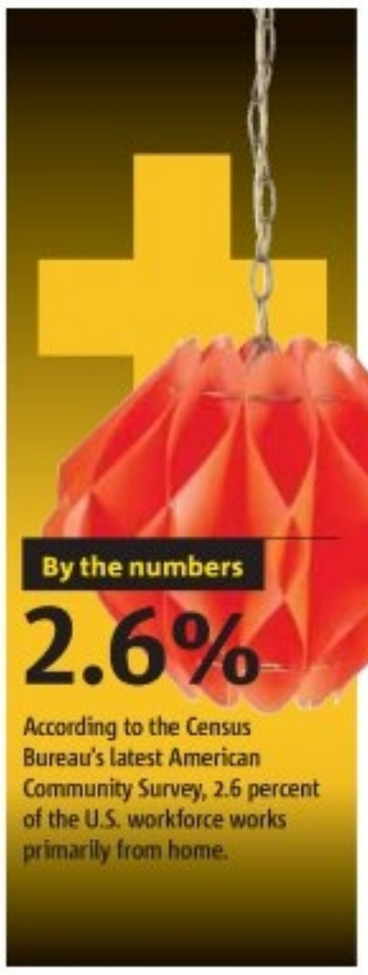
PHILADELPHIA COLLEGE OF OSTEOPATHIC MEDICINE



By the numbers

2.6%

According to the Census Bureau's latest American Community Survey, 2.6 percent of the U.S. workforce works primarily from home.

Make your home office work for you

Homework. The kitchen is no place to conduct business.

If you're lucky enough to work from home, you know that no work, in the history of work, has ever been done on the couch. Same goes for the kitchen table. And don't even get us started on the coffee shop: If you're not the fresh-faced, making-it-in-the-city star of a romantic comedy, you have no business working out of a coffee shop.

You need a proper home office — whether you're a full-time telecommuter or just dabbling in flexible summer hours.

We hit up Philly-based interior designer Mel McDaniel (www.melmcdanieldesign.com) for tips on setting up a productive, peaceful space.

New colors can help you keep focused on your work. / TOP PHOTO GROUP

Designate a space

No bedroom to spare? No problem. It's not crucial that you designate an entire room — just that you designate some room to be used strictly for business. "Closets, nooks, attics — if you need a home office, the space can be found," says McDaniel. "Look carefully: Is there a large closet that could be converted into an office? Is there a part of a room that would work with a space divider?"

Desk direction

A little feng shui goes a long way when it comes to your desk. "Never put a desk so that the person sitting at it has their back to the door," says McDaniel. "It's very unnerving to work without being able to see the doorway."

No fluorescents

Light the way

There's nothing less inspiring than cubicle farm fluorescents. If you're working on your own turf, soften things up overhead, then add additional task lighting near your desk. Pro tip: To free up space, McDaniel recommends ditching the desk lamp and going for wall-mounted fixtures.

Beauty products to steal from your boyfriend

Late night, home to his, no beauty products in tow, so it's his grimy soap or nothing. We've all been there. But wait, what's this? A whole cabinet of his products that we a) had been oblivious to and b) hadn't been invited to use ... yet. Now we've found them. The only thing we're missing now is straighteners and scrunchies. Boys? ALICE TATE

1 MenScience

If the ever-ubiquitous trusty tin of Nivea cream doesn't agree with your complexion, try MenScience's Face Lotion. It smells fresh and isn't overpowering, and it's rich and effective. Plus, we'd be lying if we said we didn't love the look of the minimal packaging on our bathroom shelves, too.

2 Jack Black

Jack Black's range of wash products is as appealing to girls as it is to guys, and ultimately does the same job: namely, cleaning us. If you hate the sickly sweet smell of floral body washes and fruity cleansers, Jack Black is perfect for you.

3 Creed Fragrance

You're at his place and forgot your perfume. Can you really get away with a spritz of his cologne? If it's Creed he's stashing, then the answer is yes. Whether you go for the Original Santal scent, the Original Vetiver or the Neroli Sauvage, prepare to be impressed, as these fragrances manage to be just as appealing on him as they are on you.

4 Gillette

I think many of us would agree that generally, men's razors are better than women's. And none more so than Gillette. These blades are sturdy and glide well, and they don't rust or become dull in two uses. And most importantly, they catch all of the hairs.

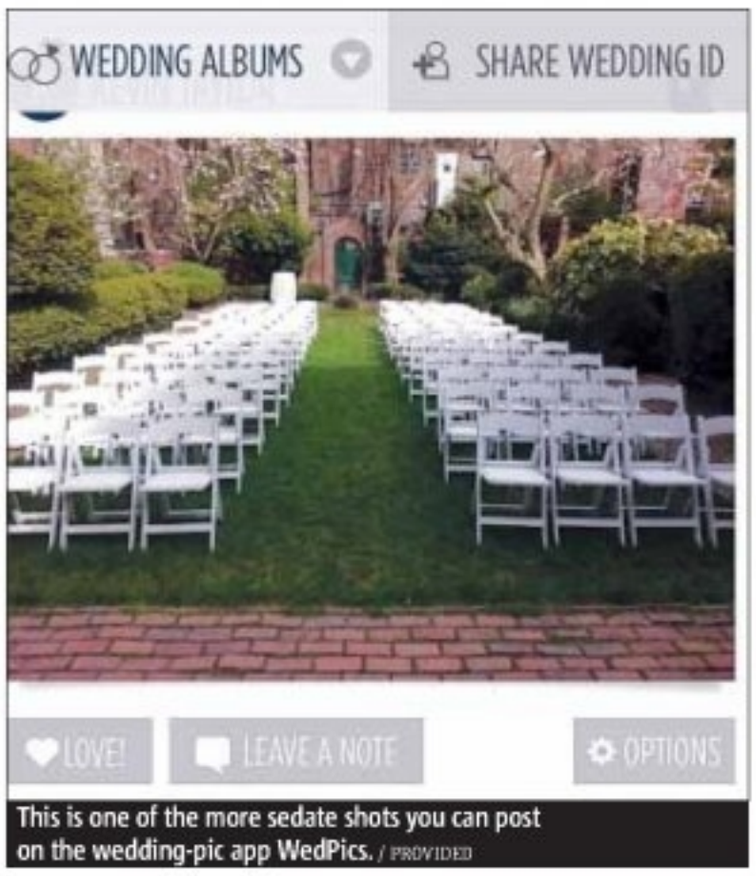
MAKE YOUR WEDDING GO VIRAL



This is one of the more sedate shots you can post on the wedding-pic app WedPics. / PROVIDED

WedPics

Platforms: iOS and Android
Price: Free

As it's warm but not yet sticky and gross, June is one of the most popular months for weddings. But weddings can't just be an awkward mishmash of family and chummy reprobates getting drunk (or worse, idly chatting because there's no hooch). The future is now, so we need to spend, say, half that time staring at our phones, right? Weddings need to go viral, so the many who were not invited to the festivities can feel as though they were there and also to capture those in mid-Elaine dance.

WedPics makes this easier. It's a social-media app that allows invitees to share photos of the bride and/or groom instantly to the app while the wedding is still going on — all while some poor professional photographer scampers about, trying to act all Robert Capa (look him up!). This way, guests' artless snapshots that they'll Instagram-filter into beauty later can be grouped by wedding in an organized fashion. Users can then rifle through the thicket of mass photos afterwards,or gawk at pictures of the best man making an awkward face during his awkward toast.

One fun thing about this app is that you can meet fellow "photographers" you might not have otherwise met at the wedding: "Oh, you're the one who posted the photo of the graffiti you saw on your way in!" (The pictures you upload need not be idyllic pics of the happy couple; you can technically put anything that's in your phone on WedPics).

But remember that a wedding audience includes little kids and grandparents. Don't post anything you wouldn't say over the mic to all of these people.

Another cool app

7 Minute Workout Challenge

Platforms: iOS and Android
Price: $1.99

Last year there was a great deal of buzz about an exercise regimen designed by scientists that purported to give you an effective full-body workout in only seven intense minutes. Mixing jumping jacks, push-ups, planks, lunges and weird-looking wall-sits, you power you through each set with brief bouts of respite before dipping back in. When your seven-minute workout is done, you're free to go back to eating pounds of bacon.

Here are but some of the exercises that will hurt you in The 7 Minute Workout Challenge. / PROVIDED

Many apps have sought to capitalize on the gimmick, but one of the better and cleaner ones is the 7 Minute Workout Challenge. A nice-sounding trainer guides you through each workout. Of course, if you're a city dweller, you run the risk of irritating your neighbors downstairs with all your jumping around. But if you can make it through to the last exercise — the side plank — without pulling a muscle, you probably don't need this workout anyway.

Tread with confidence

The right shoes will help you go the distance. / COLOURBOX

Running.
Are you wearing the right shoe?

In spring, it seems like they're suddenly everywhere, in bright colors along sidewalks and all over the parks. Instead of dodging all those runners, how about joining them?

Today is National Running Day, and there are few easier ways to get fit than lacing up a pair of kicks and taking to the streets. "It's almost like, why aren't you running?" jokes Giovanni Jimenez, a manager at Brooklyn Running Co. "I don't think [racing] has a lot to do with our sport anymore; you have a lot of people participating."

While the convenient thing about running is that you can do it pretty much anywhere, not every shoe is created equal. We asked Jimenez what's best on various city terrains.

Asphalt

Streets and paved paths want something "soft and squishy that you can manipulate" with a feeling "like stepping into cake." Ultimately, it comes down to preference. Are you looking for something lightweight, racy or a workhorse that can collect miles? Every brand has a signature feel. "It's sort of like picking a mattress: Which one is more comfortable?" Jimenez asks.

NIKE ZOOM TERRA KIGER ($125)

Trail

"I would pay attention to the tread on the shoe," he says. Lightweight trail shoes that can dig into the dirt a little better are ideal; think road vs. mountain tires on a bike. Nike's waffle tread is iconic for a reason. Try the Nike Zoom Terra Kiger ($125), a good example of a true trail shoe, Jimenez says. If you want to go way off the beaten path, consider Inov-8, a British shoe company that's becoming a darling of the CrossFit movement.

Expert advice

Get the right fit

Going into a running-centered store can feel intimidating, acknowledges Matthew Rosetti, co-founder of Brooklyn Running. But the equipment and expertise can help you not just find the right shoe, but one that heads off potential problems. "Running is a repetitive-stress type activity," he says. "So over time, you can develop some repetitive-stress injuries as a result of imbalances." At Brooklyn Running, the experts ask about a runner's habits and injury history, then assess his or her gait. "We're not doctors and don't believe any piece of footwear can be truly corrective," Rosetti says. "But it's a good start."

Long distance

Brooks Running Glycerin 12

The Brooks Running Glycerin 12 ($150) has "a ton of cushion," and the newest model shed nearly an ounce of weight. The shoe has an "ideal pressure zone" to distribute shock evenly.

Mizuno Wave Sayonara

Opt for a "nice, little racing flat or lightweight trainer" like the Mizuno Wave Sayonara ($120), which is especially easy on the midsole.

Horoscope

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. The answer to a personal problem will reveal itself. A situation that you thought unresolvable will come to an amiable conclusion.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. An unexpected surprise will develop, helping a difficult situation turn positive. Cast your worries aside and plan to relax with someone.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. If you wish to raise your standard of living, make some adjustments. Your employer may be nice, but could also be taking advantage of your talents.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Your good-natured joking will be misinterpreted. Make sure you are laughing with your friends, not at them.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. A short trip will clear your head and motivate you to take on something new. Discovering new skills will help you make friends.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. Don't retreat into your shell. Keep moving forward positively. You will ruin what you have already accomplished if you aren't a team player.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Ask yourself if you are moving forward or just coasting. It may be necessary to increase your efforts.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. Follow your instincts when it comes to financial decisions. There is money to be made with patience. Plan a romantic evening.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. You are facing an emotional downturn. Get together with close friends or engage in physical activity. It's hard to mope when you are active.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Usher in a new project. Your energy level is high, and your ideas for improvement look good.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Make sure your calendar isn't overloaded. If you have too many tasks to complete, you won't have time to enjoy friends or family. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

New coal regulations will hurt the poor, cost jobs

Following the huge increase in U.S. production of natural gas from shale, electricity from coal has already dropped from 50 to 37 percent of the total, which pleases environmentalists.

Why then does President Obama now introduce a carbon dioxide regulation against coal plants which the Chamber of Commerce says will cost $50 billion and kill jobs at a time when many Americans are still struggling to find work?

He does this on the basis of a Clean Air Act from the 1970s, which was not intended to regulate carbon dioxide.

Obama laments the increasing disparity between rich and poor in the U.S., but his regulation will cause increased electricity rates, which would hurt the poor much more than the rich.

England has a carbon dioxide tax and the London Spectator has said that there have been many winter deaths among the elderly because they cannot pay the high energy cost.

During the period of comment, I hope Americans will speak out against this unwise and unnecessary regulation.

Faces of the Phillies

MLB. The Phillies have become a team that proudly touts black talent and stars.

The world is a much different place than when the Phillies were the last National League team to integrate in 1957 when they acquired John Irvin Kennedy from the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"It's funny how the team that was the last to add an African-American to its roster now leads the league in African-Americans," Tony Gwynn Jr. said.

Jimmy Rollins said that he really hasn't noticed that the Phillies have seven black players, but that has registered with Gwynn, who realizes that the Phillies are well above the league average, which is 8.3 percent, according to the MLB.

"That's crazy, since our team is about 40 percent African-Americans," Gwynn said.

Gwynn is exaggerating, but he isn't that far off the mark. More than half of the Phillies starting eight, Rollins, Ryan Howard, Ben Revere, Domonic Brown and Marlon Byrd are black.

"That's pretty amazing when you look around the league," Brown said. "You might see one African-American on one team or maybe none on a team, but you look around this clubhouse now and we got some pretty cool guys, who happen to be African-American. The bottom line is that each of us can play baseball. That's why we're here, but we're a really good group. We have a lot of personality and have a lot of fun with each other."

That's inarguable. Howard was a historic run producer. Rollins is the greatest shortstop in the history of the franchise and will soon be the club's all-time hits leader. Byrd is a solid right fielder who is a team leader. The Phillies hope that Revere and Brown, a 2013 All-Star, can each find their form from last year.

If only Ben Chapman, the Phillies racist manager, who tormented Jackie Robinson in 1947, was still around.

"There's a lot of talent here," Gwynn said. "I remember when I was on the opposing team and I'll tell you, the baseball world really respects Ryan Howard and Jimmy Rollins. They happen to be African-American and great ballplayers."

It's not a coincidence that the greatest period in Phillies history featured Howard and Rollins.

"Times have changed in Philadelphia," Gwynn said. "They don't ignore talented African-Americans. They're here right now. I remember being on the Milwaukee Brewers and we had five African-Americans. They're seven here. I hope the African-American kids notice."

Ryan Howard and Jimmy Rollins are all-time Phillies greats, with Domonic Brown looking to follow in their footsteps. / GETTY IMAGES

Utley in first

Utley leads second basemen in All-Star votes

Second baseman Chase Utley looks to be headed to another All-Star game this season (974,196 votes). Utley leads the Dodgers Dee Gordon (530,289) by a sizable margin.

Utley has been named a Silver Slugger four times and leads all second basemen in slugging percentage and doubles, trailing only Robinson Cano in batting average.

The lefty already has 23 doubles and is on pace to tie an all-time MLB record for doubles if he continues at this pace with 67 (Earl Webb in 1931). METRO

Matthews in the slot

Eagles' rookie could earn No. 2 receiver role

After the departure of Jason Avant this past winter, the Eagles needed a slot receiver to fill his shoes. Their second-round pick, Jordan Matthews, appears to be their man, and the job (No. 2 to Jeremy Maclin) is his for the taking.

In camp, he's been learning on the second unit with Brad Smith, and seems destined to take over the role sooner rather than later.

"I don't worry about all that stuff," Matthews said. "I'll try and learn from the guys who are older, like Brad, who' is an awesome pro and has played in the league for a long time." METRO

MLB. Phillies get no mercy as marathon schedule continues

The Phillies are in D.C. and hope they can erase the past 12 days from their memories and bounce back into contention.

The three games the Phillies played against the Mets this past weekend (Friday, Saturday and Sunday), combined to last 39 innings and was the first consecutive stretch of three games lasting 11 or more innings each between two teams since the Mariners and Blue Jays in 1991.

The 11-game homestand started with the Dodgers and saw the Phillies get no-hit by Josh Beckett. Though the Phils were able to take two of three against the Rockies in the middle of the stand, they posted a lackluster 4-7 mark and are still licking their wounds.

The Phillies will be shown no mercy from the baseball gods anytime soon, as they're in the middle of playing 41 games in 41 days. Yes, they have a day of rest on June 9, but a doubleheader on June 28 against the Braves gives them one of the more ruthless stretches of games in recent history.

In fact, the Phillies have 54 games in 55 days leading up to the All-Star break in July with off days on June 9th and June 30 — and that's it.

Though the bullpen, once the Phillies' biggest weakness, has sharpened and become more reliable of late, the amount of work they have endured lately doesn't appear to bode well as Philly continues its three-game set against the Nationals on Wednesday.

The opportunity to play away from home might serve the team well, however, as the Phillies sport the second-worst home winning percentage in all of baseball. EVAN MACY

DO YOU KNOW SOMEONE WHO SUFFERS FROM SUDDEN URGES TO URINATE AND INCONTINENCE? IF THE ANSWER IS YES,

We're conducting a clinical research study of an investigational combination of two study drugs for overactive bladder.
Each of the study drugs work in a different way to each other, so the investigational combination is being evaluated to see if it may offer the additional relief the patient is looking for.

Participants will receive, at no cost, study-related care, monitoring, and study drug.

To learn more please contact
